In the past two centuries, researchers and scientists have tried to establish a scientific notion of "race" by claiming it was grounded in biology.

Today still, some trends in socio-biology and in the ecologist thought might lend themselves to a justification of discriminatory doctrines on pseudo-scientific grounds: the exhibition is aimed at debunking such myths.

Its main targets are students and teachers, but it will also provide answers to all those who still have doubts as regards the notion of race and its meaning.
